

World War 2 Immersive Theatre Experience for Schools

- Unique immersive educational experience
- Content is designed and written by Splatter Make to cover key themes and curriculum points
- We can add bespoke elements for your school, to include chosen texts and literature
- Local - with fantastic transport links, offering a low-cost, low-impact trip for your students in their own community

Splatter Make invite your children to travel back in time by participating on one of our unique immersive theatre workshops.

The World War 2 experience at Splattermake allows your students to live a day in the life of an evacuee or refugee in 1940s England.

The Splattermake Studios in Beckenham - where the children will take part in various activities and theatre pieces to help them learn - are themed to become a fun environment with 1940s elements of decoration.

The workshops are led by the Splattermake team, who remain in character throughout the day, constantly incorporating elements of drama and fun to enhance the learning environment. This is a real-life adventure where the children will be immersed in the spirit of war-time London experiencing stories, poetry and non-fiction information throughout the day which is delivered via original and carefully designed theatre and studio-classroom work, audio elements such as recordings of Winston Churchill speaking, as well as visual stimulation via the decoration of the studios.

What Other Schools have said:

Thank you to you and all your staff, especially Sarah and Felicity, for the amazing learning experience Splattermake gave the children today. They were so excited and full of it when they came back to school and wanted to tell everyone about their day. The children have learned and experienced so much about life in WW2 - thank you once again!"

DEPUTY HEADTEACHER

HAWES DOWN JUNIOR SCHOOL

Make-do-and-Mend

In the sewing studio children are given some hands-on experience of the make-do-and-mend theme. They will learn some basic sewing techniques and make their own bunting.

Theatre Workshop

During the afternoon the children will participate in a drama-workshop led by passionate professional actors and drama coaches. Through this experience they can contextualise their learning via text, images and movement and physical expression.

Ration-Book Cooking

Working in our Pantry-Kitchen children will learn and take part in ration-book cooking. They learn all about the types of foods available, nutrition during the war and have a go at cooking a recipe, such as carrot biscuits.

Other immersive theatre themes at Splatter Make

- Life in Ancient Greece and Rome
- Life in a Dickensian London Poor-House
- The Rainforest
